

Lecture: 1.3.4. Slouching Towards Utopia?

The first century in which we can think that a truly human world may soon be within our grasp...

- Amazingly productive human accomplishments
- A great deal of increase in and spread of human freedom
- But a lot has gone wrong in the process
 - War and tyranny
 - Slow technological and organizational diffusion
 - The development of underdevelopment
 - Wealth gulfs
- So what do we need other than material abundance to build a utopia?
 - Does Keynes have anything to tell us?
 - Does Diamond?
 - Does Bellamy?

3:00 of audio in this slide; 9:30 in this slide

Catch Our Breath...

- Ask a couple of questions?
- Make a couple of comments?
- Any more readings to recommend?

